2012 Home Building Trends

See what trending in home building for 2012

Happy New Year from Armstrong Homes! 2012 is looking much more optimistic for the home industry...finally! So, to help you design your new home, here are some hot trends for the new year.

Less Formal Spaces—

According to a recent survey of National Association of Home Builders members, many believe that the formal dining room is on its way out. Many busy families prefer an eat in kitchen or more living space.

In Law/Dual Suites —With more multi-generational families living together, In-Law and Dual suites will become popular in 2012 with a focus on privacy for larger families living together.

Efficiencies— This seems to be a recurring trend year after year as more efficient products are continually marketed. For 2012 look for new lighting, dual flush toilets, and low flow faucets.

A fully functional in-law suite is one of the hottest trends in home building design for 2012.

Bonus Rooms— Bonus rooms are popular for growing families with young children as well as older generations looking to have space for their grandchildren.

Door Makeovers—Replacing doors in 2012, including solid wood interior doors, and decorative exterior doors to add curb appeal will be hot in 2012.

Armstrong Homes can help you design a new home or remodel that will be both functional for your needs and efficient. We look forward to seeing you in 2012!
